DETAILED ACTION

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Haraguchi et al.

As per claims 1-3 and 5, Haraguchi et al. discloses an print inspection apparatus (43), a method, a printing system (Fig 4) that generates print image data and performs at least one of plate making and output (110 on the basis of print image data, and a program that is executed by a computer (43) to cause said computer to function as a print inspection apparatus, all comprising: an image sharpness conversion (44) element for converting an image sharpness of inspection object data (image resolution of other printheads) which is acquired in a processing on print image data and that of reference data (image resolution of standard printhead) which represents an image condition as a reference for comparison with said inspection object data by performing an average-masking operation (correction work) on pixels constituting said inspection object data and pixels constituting said reference data on the basis of a predetermined mask size (C3, L38+); and a comparison element for comparing said inspection object data with said reference data with each other after converting their respective image sharpness, to perform an inspection for printing (C3, L51-55).

As per claim 4, Haraguchi et al. discloses the printing system further comprising an image reader (52 goes to 43) capable of reading at least one of images for printing a plate, a plate-making film, and a printed matter (C13, L15+), wherein image data acquired by said image reader becomes at least one of said inspection object data and said reference data (printed data).
